

Remarks upon the Opening of the Academic Year 2010 by Dr. Tome Nenovski

---

University American College Skopje Academic Year Inauguration, Aleksandar Palace, Skopje, 22 September 2010

DEAR STUDENTS, DEAR PARENTS OF OUR STUDENTS, ESTEEMED GUESTS AND RESPECTED FRIENDS:

One of the most important and most notorious ideologies in the modern civilizations is the faith in the educational values. The world is moving towards creating education based societies. It is the key for learning, knowledge and understanding in order to respond to the challenges of the quite complex social and political world we live in.

The Republic of Macedonia is in a period of dynamic changes in the education. The educational and upbringing system is in a continuous process of reforms in search for modern and quality solutions that will be appropriate to the new situations. The higher education, being a complex, dynamic, open and comprehensive system, should acquire new functional organizations with appropriately designed efficient structure. In these frames, the American College University – Skopje has the imperative objective: To initiate and establish a process that will lead towards continuous improvement of its work and to achieve the highest and internationally respectable results for its students by realizing the modern methodologies and activities.

This is, in fact, our vision. To have a vision it does not mean to dream with your head up in the clouds but instead it means to have your eyes, heart and spirit open, to have trust in your intuition and reach the ultimate objective – the establishment of good future for our students.

Dear students,

Your future is created now, in the present. Therefore the UACS established a new learning culture in order to prepare you and make you ready for the demands in all areas of public and private life as well as to promote you in the future globalization leaders. UACS enables you access to the latest information and know-how and is motivating you for sophisticated use of these resources. In the same time, UACS is offering you: acquisition of new skills; innovations in the learning and teaching process, modern and quality learning assessment; informative, pedagogical and advisory work; approximation of the educational to the professional and practical world... Through the flexibility and adaptability of its teaching programs, UACS make you capable for the demands, needs and changes in the modern education. That is the key for the introduction of global quality in your lives and work.

In the same time it marks our mission – to prepare you for learning, work and for full mobility in a democratic and multicultural environment such is the global world. This approach justifies my conviction that, by making your choice to study at UACS, you made the best choice for shaping your future.

Dear students,

On behalf of the Rector's Board and on behalf of all the professors and teachers in UACS I wish you a successful and prosperous academic year.
May God be with you!

Dr. Tome Nenovski

University American College Skopje